Rhodri trained at Eversheds in Cardiff. After qualifying in 1997, he spent four years with Palser Grossman specialising in general commercial disputes and professional negligence claims against solicitors and surveyors.

In 2001, Rhodri moved to Morgan Cole in Cardiff to specialise in property related disputes. He subsequently moved to an in-house role at the Peacock Group, a national retailer, where he dealt with a mixture of property issues as well as general contractual and regulatory work.

Rhodri joined Darwin Gray as a partner in June 2003. He advises on a broad range of commercial and contractual disputes and has particular expertise in property related disputes. This includes residential and commercial property and all landlord and tenant work, commercial and contractual disputes, professional negligence (particularly relating to property), and shareholder and company disputes.

Personal Interests

In his spare time, Rhodri enjoys playing golf and cooking.
